

REDEFINING EARLY CHILDHOOD ENVIRONMENT

We acknowledge the traditional territories of the Lekwungen and WSÁNEĆ peoples whose land we work, live and play on.

Enter our reimagined early childhood inclusive space where open-ended play thrives. We want to create a space where we take into consideration children's sensory needs while also nurturing children's natural curiosity by exploring loose parts and natural materials. Educators transcend traditional roles. We are facilitators and co-creators, attentively observing and listening as children navigate their explorations. With our collaborative ideas and resources provided by the CCRR, we want to create a space that inspires educators, children, and the greater community to think about what play and care can look like in an inclusive space and how we can use materials to meet children's diverse needs.

Join us in reshaping early childhood, where Exploration, Creativity, and Empowerment take center stage.

Early Learning and Care
Camosun College